Right Rev. Joseph Patrick Lynch. Roman Catholic bishop of the diocess of Dallas, was tendered a reception Monday night in the chamber of commerce building by the wamen organizations of the church of the immaculate Conception and the chapel of the Holy Family, representing the Daughters of the Queen, the Daughters of Erin, St. Anne's sodality, the Woman's Catholic Benevolent society, and the The bishop, who has an Irishman's tondness for a loke, had some pleasantry for almost every one he met. Bishop Lynch will leave El Paso Friday. He will go to Fabens, to arrange for the building of a parish house there and to confirm a class. At Van Horn and Sierrs Blancs the oisans and Herral to arrangements for the building of churches, and from there on he will visit the remaining cities in the western pass of the diocese of Dalias.

The reception committee in charge of the entertainment, consisted of Mesdames James Meuttmann. Thomas O'Keefe. H. O. Dow, Herman Andreas, C. E. Kelly, J. A. Delancy, R. J. Carson, Frank Ainsa, J. E. Morgan, J. C. Ronan, M. P. Maloney, Joe Dunne, Tom Nealon, Miss Anna LeBaron and Miss Plorence LeBaron. The men on the committee were: Judge A. S. J. Eylar, mayor C. E. Kelly, Joe Nealon, Tom Nealon, G. W. Emerson. Herman Andreas, J. D. Ponder, Frank Ainsa, Robert Lyons, Joe Dunne, R. J. Carson, M. P. Maloney, Thomas O'Keefe and Rev. Francis C. Roy, Col. E. Z. Steever, who was on the committee, was unable to present.

It is estimated that about 300 people attended the reception.

Erin. St. Anne's sodality, the Woman's Catholic Benevolent society, and the Altar society.

The reception was held in the main hall of the building, which was draped with enormous American flags. On the rostrum with the bishop were Rev. Francis C. Roy, Rev. F. Tomassini, of San Elizario, mayor C. E. Kelly, Joe Nealon, Tom Nealon, and Herman Andreas. The full orchestra of the Fourth cavalry played musical selections through the evening, under the direction of bandmaster Guinto.

Joe Nealon, city attorney, introduced the bishop with a short speech. He spoke of the good feeling existing in the latterment of the city and commented on the respect each had for the other's bellef and the general good feeling existing as shown by the large number of people representing other religious beliefs that had come to meet the Roman Catholic bishop, and the high regard in which bishop Lynch was held by the members of his own church. ligious beliefs that had come to meet the Roman Catholic bishop Lynch was held by the members of his own church. The keynote of bishop Lynch's address was American clitizenship and religious tolerance. He said among other things: "So long as we are consistent and sincere in our religious views, just so long can we stand on the common platform that is suggested by these star spangled banners, that is suggested by these star spangled banners, that is suggested by these soldler boys of the United States, that platform that we designate as American citizenship. God asks each of you to be consistent in what you believe, that is all. There are enough common dangers to our country, to our common dangers to our country, to our community, and to the common good to be contended with without people who attempt to worship God flying at each other's throuts because all do not believe alike on certain questions of dogma and doctrine."

After reviewing a little of the work done on his visit to this district of his diocese, in which he has all together confirmed close to 3000 people, the hishop dropped into a humorous rein, making a number of witty sallies about the rain. He declared that for the honor the women had done him in braving the inclement weather he, if he had his way, would extend to the women the right of the ballot. While his remarks could hardly be called a suffraget speech, any one who had a leaning in the suffraget direction must have been vasily gratified by the sincere tribute the bishop paid to woman-hood and their qualifications for voting. He closed his remarks by thanking the El Pascans for their hospitality to him during his stay.

At the close of the bishop's address, the bishop met all who were present. Joe Nealon, acting as master of ceremonies, introduced the people who formed in a double line to pass and shake the hand of the distinguished guest.

BALTIMORE WILL SPEND $35,000 IN DECORATIONS FOR THE

Ealtimore, Md., June 11.—The same energy that the citizens of Baltimore displayed in going after the Democratic convention is evident in the prepartions that have been made here for the comfort and entertainment of the convention guests and the convenience of the political leaders and delegates who will name the party's next candidate for president. As soon as Baltimore was chosen for the convention city, the Maryland isgislature authorized the city to expend $55,000 in repairing and relighting and decorating streets and buildings. This was exclusive of the $55,000 appropriated for remodeling the Fifth regiment armory, where the delegates will assemble.

The committee that went to Wash-

of promittee.

Preparations to fulfill their promittees and go even further have been carried out here by means of therough organization. The first step, after the meeting of the convention here was assured, was the appointment of a citizens' committee of 700, which was divided into subcommittees, and to each of these was delegated a certain part

This estimate is the minimum here. The more enthusiastic are counting on hearly 100,000 convention guests. The special committee which investigated the city's hotel and boarding house facilities and rates has reported the all cilities and rates has reported that all strangers can be taken care of; and visitors who are unable to find accommodations are asked to communicate with the general convention committee. Hotels Have Doubled Help.

The committee made a searching in-quiry into convention hotel rates and its formal report was to the affect that these rates were by no means exorbi-tant and amply justified. To meet the increased demand the hotels have been increased demand the hotels have been obliged practically to double their forces of employes for the convention week and, in order to get them trained, put them at work a week before the convention opens. In addition the hotel managers have nearly duplicated their equipment of lines and tables. cated their equipment of lines and tableware. The rate plan agreed upon is as follows: One of the first class hotels, for instance, where the normal charge for a room and bath varies from $3 to $7 a day, will charge as many persons as occupy a $3 room $3 each, and those in a $4 room $4 each, but no one will be charged more than $4 a day, even though he be one of the occupants of a $5 or $7 room. The Hotel Managers' association claims this is a fair arrangement, since otherwise a guest might expect to hire a $3 room and put in it as many persons as he saw fit, paying only a nominal service charge for each additional person. Such a service charge, the hotel men say, would not compensate them for the outlay for extra equipment and help necessitated by the convention.

Bates Not Raised.

Rates Not Raised.

The hotel committee reports that none of the hotels has raised cafe rates. none of the hotels has raised cafe rates, and that room rates will run as low as $1,50 a day. It declares that a comparison with prices of cities that have taken care of previous convention crowds and with the rates scheduled in Chicago for the Republican convention this year shows that hotel charges here are as low as any and in many instances lower.

A booklet issued for the convenience of convention visitors contains the following paragraph regarding this subject of food and ledgings:

"Baltimore is prepared to handle a large crowd. It will be well to make reservations in advance. No one need feel disturbed, however, if reservations have not been secured in advance. A very effective plan has been developed whereby persons arriving, without having made reservations, will be able to secure comfortable quariers at no inconvenience to themselves. All that is needed, after reaching the city, is to make application at the official headquarters. These headquarters are down town on the first floor of the Equitable building. Calvert and Payette streets. A complete register is on file there of all the various gradations of quarters and accommodations, from the $1 room to the more pretentious suites, if notice is sent in advance as to the time visitors expect to arrive in Baltimors, an effort will be made to have some of the reception committee at the particular place of arrival so as to look after those who may come. Any and all information about seats and accommodations, can be obtained by writing to Robert Crain, general chairman, Calvert building. Baltimore."

The Decarations.

When the city first began to prepare for the convention, plans were suggested for the erection of street arches and for decorating the public buildings with colored bunting. Later this idea was rejected, because the committee on decorations concluded that it would attain better results by confining its decorations almost entirely to lights and flowers and living green.

At night the stranger in town will have no difficulty finding his way to the convention hall. He need only gaze upward and follow any of the three great beams of light which will be focussed on the Fifth regiment armosty from three different parts of the city. These searchlights will shine forth from the tops of the Emerson and Belvedere hotels and from the tower of the Maryland Casualty company's building.

Lights Will Cost $15,000. Lightw Will Cost $15,000.

The appropriation for this special lighting is $15,000. The convention hall itself will be a biage of lights, the ribs of the curving roof being outlined by 10,000 electric bulhs. The block of Bolton street leading to the main entrance of the hall will be brilliant with a coltonade of electric lamps on pilars to feet apart. The portice of the city hall will be outlined with electric bulbs and some of the city's principal monuments will be treated in the same way. To supplement this display by the city the proprietors and tenants of all the tall buildings have been saked to leave the lights burning in upper rooms so the

The problem of handling a great convention crowd was two-fold—first, to bring them to falltimore; second, to house, feed and entertain them while here. The first of these was simple, Baltimore is proud of her transportation facilities both by rail and by water. Three railroads, the Penpsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio and the Western Maryland connect the city with the north, south and west, and it steamship lines give it a prominent position in the transpoceanic and coastwing trade and passenger service.

Judging from the number of hotel and boarding house reservations and from past conventions, the addition to Baltimore's population during the week of June 25 will be not less than 60,000. This estimate is the minimum here.

One of the most pepular trips of the week promises to be down the Pataps-co river, which forms the city's fine harbor, and out into Chemapeake bay. For the accommodation of delegates and visitors who wish to take this excursion the city has refitted the steamers annapolis and Latrobe, which are used in winter to keep the harbor clear of ice. One states that seven was the original salute, but that in England this was given three times, once for Scotland, once for Ireland and once for England.
